Partner schools gather at Chatham High

CHATHAM High School hosted the North Manning Learning Community on the first day of term this week to collaborate on a range of learning patterns for students across the partner schools. The day was used to promote cross education between the schools within the community to ensure an easier transition for students from primary school to high school.

Pictured: Chatham High School principal Willem Holvast hosted principals from within the North Manning Learning Community on Monday, as part of a staff development day, including Debra Puckeridge from Harrington Primary School, Bruce Coote from Cundletown Public School and Amanda Pitt from Chatham Public School.